Step-by-Step

Start Run & Grow a Successful Art Business Online

Copyright AmyParkerArt.com 2021+

Welcome

"Hi" I'm Amy & I'm so excited to offer this free guide to you!

Do you know just by reading this you're ahead of the game? Yup, that's right. Most people who "think" about starting a business don't actually take "action".

I promise to you that I will give you VALUABLE information in this guide to the BEST of my knowledge. And I want you to promise to yourself that you will implement what sounds exciting & doable to you:)

Maybe you're nervous, have self doubt, wonder if your paintings (& or drawings) are good enough to sell. Maybe you love to paint but the business end of things confuse & frustrate you.

Are you old school "typer" like me? I didn't have computer class, I had typing class lol! Does "online" scare & overwhelm you?

Don't worry. I'm gonna help you get a clearer vision of what you can accomplish! 😊

Is an Online Art Business Right for You?

Let me ask you some Q's...

- *Would you like to make $ online as an artist by selling your artwork?
- *Have you struggled in the past to sell your artwork?
- *Have you done in person arts & crafts shows?
- *Do you love to create art & want people who "would love" your work to find you?
- *Do you believe the internet holds multiple opportunities for anyone in business?

Yes = Right

Did you answer "yes" to 1 or more of these questions? If so then "yes" an online art business is right for you!

You can use the online space as a supplement for what you're doing in person or you can go "all in" online like I do. It's just a matter of preference:)

Possibilities...

Sell a Few Paintings

A Side Hustle

Or Even a Full Time
Gig!

I'm Excited to Coach you through this Process

Here's Why...

I've been creative my whole, life selling my pieces intermittently throughout the years. In 2018 I went all in online and consistently sold my artwork. Enough so, I paid my mortgage & bills every single month with my art sales alone for 3 consecutive years!!!

I've been there, done that 😊

I then switched gears. I created a membership called Creative Warriors to help other artists gain success online like I have. I still sell to my art collector base but I put a ton of energy into coaching & helping my members.

Why? Because I'm passionate about helping the struggling artist. I've been there myself & wish I would have had someone to help "me" years ago!

I'm in the trenches with you 🌟😊

Guess what, I never went to art school nor do I have a business degree but I am a determined entrepreneur!! I wasn't even very "techy" in the beginning & STILL sold drawings & paintings online.

I have proven strategies that work!

I had to stop taking commission work because my waitlist timeframe grew to over a year long! *Good problem to have lol!

Start Carving Your Path

Decisive People - Get More Accomplished

You'll need to make Lots of decisions to start, run & grow your art business. Don't get overwhelmed. Discover the possibilities & implement strategies on your own time. This is "your" journey & "you" make the decisions!

Print out this guide or save it to your computer & come back to it when you need:)

*If you have the Will & Drive, you Can &
Will reach your Goals & Dreams* ❤️

*Want some extra help & bounce ideas off fellow creatives? Then join the free group I set up for you Creative Dreams!

Ok, let's get crackin' on some decision making... 😊

What will you Create for Sale?

If you know already, excellent! If you're stuck, let's brainstorm...

*What are you already good at creating? _____

*What types of art do you "enjoy" creating? _____

*Have people already shown interest in your work? What were those pieces? _____

*What have you gotten positive feedback on & likes, hearts etc?

*Have you already sold some pieces? If so, what were they?

Spoiler Alert & Pep Talk;

Not everyone will like your work. Not everyone likes mine. I see a lot of artists struggle with "self-doubt". To help you, let me ask you this, "Have you liked every single piece of art you have ever seen"?

There ARE people who WILL be attracted to your work! I'm living proof. The key here is "perseverance". Be willing to gain perseverance & you will gain art collectors!!

Pick the Category Forms you will Offer

There's numerous forms of selling art you could offer. Here's my top 5 favorite category forms!! Pick 1 or more that will best fit your creations...

1 COMMISSIONS

You will offer specific pieces that a customer / collector requests you to create. *Examples; I have drawn numerous portraits of people & animals from my art lovers photos. As well as many specific paintings, from photos they took like sunsets, scenic vacation pics & even their homes.

2 PERSONALIZED

Art you create that you can add a personalized touch on, like this unicorn where I added the child's name. Man Cave, Welcome to the... are more lettering examples. You can also personalize with painting symbols of their choice like a heart, star & so on. I'm sure you could think of numerous personalized touches!

3 ORIGINAL ART

Your own original art creations that you are inspired to paint, draw or create with another favorite medium of yours. You can get innovative here because hey - this is YOUR original art:)

4 REPRODUCTIONS

I personally have recreated numerous pieces of my own original art. This example of my "Purple Tree" design I have reproduced & sold 36 times!! Will you offer reproductions?

5 INSTRUCTION

Do you like to teach? How about having a paint party or offering art classes?! Teaching online gives you unlimited space for students.

IN-PERSON MARKETING & SALES

I remember the days of dragging my paintings around to numerous arts & crafts shows. How about you?

Negotiating with local businesses to display my work on their walls.

Submitting pieces to shows, fairs, filling out applications for exhibits in hopes to get in!

Trying to connect with gallery owners with my fingers crossed 🙏

These tasks come with paying numerous vendor, application & processing fees. Also; stress, anxiety & exhaustion (for me anyway).

Now don't get me wrong... in-person has its perks & it's a personal choice for you. Like I said previously, you can use this strategy as a supplement with online selling.

Be open to the fact, there are many opportunities online for you as an artist! You can choose, a la carte, which ways are the best for you. Which is what this guide is for 😊

PICK YOUR PRESENTATION STRUCTURE

There's numerous ways to present your art online. Here are my favorite ways of structuring this to make $ that I've done myself...

AUCTIONS

Auctions are a great way to make some quick sales if you have some extra pieces hanging around your studio! I've whipped up many paintings, that took me under an hr to paint, & put them on auction.

I've listed on E-bay in the past but my favorite is to list in my own Facebook group. *Facebook has some restrictions on auctions. I always keep my members updated with policy changes as I discover them. Just be sure to check policy first;)

SOLO SHOW

Put on your own show for your artwork! You won't be in competition with anyone because your pieces are the only ones in the show!!

*There's many ways to present this but my favorite is a Facebook Live sale$ 😊

More Presentation Structure Ideas...

Gather up your friends & put on a show! I've done numerous collaborative shows with my creative friends. The great thing about this is there's power in numbers. Not only do "I" invite my audience to attend but they all do the same 😊

If you're a Creative Warrior you already have a bunch of friends you could ask!!

*My favorite way to put on this type of show is in a pop-up Facebook group.

A hosted party is a great way to get new eyes on your pieces! I've gained many members to my own collectors group by doing hosted parties!

Ask a friend, family member or customer if they would like to have an art party. "They" will be the host / hostess & get a free gift from you. Your hostess invites all "her" friends to the party!! "You" show your art pieces for sale:)

My tips for a Hosted Party...

Have it inside of your group to grow members. If you don't have a group yet, you can run the party right inside of the event itself. (This is an event you set up on Facebook).*

Want step-by-step help with this? I wrote an entire e-book just on Hosted Parties!! Grab it HERE for only $10 😊

Teach people step by step how to create a piece of art! You would charge per student.

I have made money in my own business by segregating "instruction" into 2 areas, listed below...

These are fun & easy painting designs, typically "on season" trends. Your painters are usually beginners or have no previous painting experience.

Have you ever gone to a "Paint Party" or "Sip & Paint"? It's all about having creative FUN with your friends:)

Yes you can do these online! My favorite ways are *Facebook pop-up group or Zoom!!

Teach a step by step painting or just a specific technique like "How to use a Palette knife".

These students typically have painting experience & want to improve their skill level. They are focused more on "learning" rather than just a fun time with friends.

Painting designs for a "Class" typically are more advanced than a "Paint Party".

My favorite ways to do these online are a Facebook pop-up group or Zoom:)

Or teach a Drawing Class

YOU can do it!

Let's Recap!

*This is "Your"
Creative Journey*

This is NOT a Race

We've talked about;

- *"What" you will create for sale.
- *What "Category Forms" you will offer.
- *What will be your "Presentation Structure".

Tip; To gain momentum & success I would suggest to focus on 1 or 2 of the above. I don't want you to get overwhelmed by doing "all the things". For example: in the beginning of selling online I focused on Portrait Drawings & Quick acrylic Paintings. My category forms were Commissions & Original Art. My Presentation Structure was Auctions & Hosted Parties (shortly after, Solo Shows). Even though I've done & proven ALL of the strategies I've talked about in this Guide, I didn't start with all of them at once!

There's many variables here; how much time do you have? How fast are you at creating etc. But most of all "What does your gut tell you is right"?

PRICING

THE QUESTION EVERY ARTIST HAS

This subject I've found is difficult for many artists. It was for me as well. SPOILER ALLERT... I'm not going to tell you exactly what dollar amount you should price your art at. BUT... I'm going to give you some ways of thinking, that will definitely help you out!

Right off the bat, there's a couple of factors you need to add into your price. 1. Your cost of materials & 2. Shipping (if you are offering free shipping, you should add this into the price of your art).

First off let's understand something... Art is a "want" not a "need". We are selling a "luxury" item here (for the most part). We don't need this to survive like shelter, clothing & food.

Does this sound familiar...

I asked friends & family "what would you pay for a painting like this"? I held up one of my latest creations. They ALL gave me different answers lol! Some low-balled, some high-balled, some were in the middle range. Oh my gosh, so confusing. I felt I still wasn't "clear" on what I should charge.

Guess what... that was me in the beginning! What I discovered was the more people I asked the "clearer" my vision got on what I should charge. BUT I had to understand one thing first... everyone has an opinion. I had to have tough skin & know that not everyone understands art & the process that goes into creating a piece.

My biggest takeaway was "my" opinion is what matters most. Which it should for you as well because hey, YOU are the artists & this is YOUR work!

Ways you can Price your art

Here's 5 ways you could price your art! Pick what feel right to you...

MOST POPULAR

#1 PER HOUR

How much $ realistically do you want to get paid per hr? How much time does it take you to create a piece? *This is "my" personal favorite pricing model that I commonly use. *I'm a fast painter!

#2 PER SIZE

Many artist use this model to price their work. For example; on a 16x20" painting the would charge their highest price, 11x14" their mid price & 8x10" their lowest price. *keep in mind your customers / collectors will expect this price that you set for these sizes no matter what you paint for a subject or the time it takes you to create.

#3 PER INCH OR LINEAR

Some artists charge per square inch or per linear inch. I found most of these pricings are geared toward higher end fine arts pieces. 😊

#4 PER SUBJECT

I've used this model many times for my commissions with portraits whether it was a drawing or painting. In these example of my work I used charcoal on the same size paper. But the one with the car was a much higher price because... I charged per subject meaning, each person, dog, car etc.

Lot's of subjects = a much higher price! $$$

#5 PER STYLE

When I talk about "style" I'm mostly referring to what styling "technique" you use to create. But depending on what "you" create & what you will offer for sale this could vary. For example if you painted on wood, canvas & ceramics these could be your surface "styles".

*Here's an example of my work for a "technique" style of pricing...

MID-RANGE PRICE

Loose Brushstrokes , sort of a comic book feel

LOWEST PRICE

Blocking in style, like filling in blocks of color

HIGHEST PRICE

Impressionistic Style, dabbing in strokes

I gave you 5 popular ways you could price your art. I know it's a lot to think about so take your time & decide what's best for you to try.

If you're a Creative Warrior go ahead & #Ask your fellow Warriors what they think of your pricing model & even your specific pieces if your stuck.

*We'll brainstorm with you

Not a Creative Warrior yet? Then get on the Waitlist HERE!!

Remember "you"
art the artist &
"you" make the final decision on the price!

TIP: start with a lower price & raise
it as you gain more customers & collectors.*

Another Tip; Experience & Notoriety can also play a part in pricing.
Especially with higher price points.

If you're going to build a business online you need a payment method. In person arts & craft shows, back in the day, usually ran on cash or check. Customer picks what she wants, maybe you had a little cash box, she hands you a bill, you make her change & she's on her way.

In todays world, even in person shows, the vendor typically has an online payment method like Square or Venmo. The last time I walked around a craft show I noticed the most popular form was using a Square reader.

I have Square myself & used it numerous times for in person shows & occasionally took a customers credit card info over the phone using my Square.

There's MANY payment methods available for us to choose from these days like...

VENMO

PayPal

Messenger Pay

stripe

Square

Facebook Pay

**&
MORE!

Amy's Preferred Payment Method is

PayPal

Ok Here's the Scoop

I've been using PayPal for YEARS & I love this payment method for numerous reasons;

- *Excellent customer support
- *Ability to create invoices
- *Built in tracking history
- *Ability to create own buttons
- *Shipping integration
- *Account tier options
- *Personal PayPal me link option
- *Debit & Credit card options for your business
- *High security protected
- *MOST OF ALL: Popular, Longstanding & Trusted!

Don't understand all this lingo?

No worries 😊

Here's all you need to know for now

Go to PayPal & set up a Basic business account / this is free!

When a customer / collector wants to "Purchase" from you tell them you need their email address.

Go to PayPal & click on "Invoicing" then "Create Invoice". Follow prompts & then click send. This will go to their email to pay you.

Yup, it's that simple

What happens next...

*Your customer will get an email to make the purchase & no they don't need to have a PayPal account to do so! They can use a credit or debit card.

*You will get an email saying "You received a Payment"!!

How PayPal makes $ & what you will be Charged

2.9% & .30 cents per USD transaction

Keep in mind this is the going rate (as of now 2021). No matter what online payment method you use, you will be charged something per transaction.

PACK & SHIP

Spending a bunch of money on bubble wrap & specialty boxes! But there's an easier way...

Yes you most certainly can do this. Remember this is YOUR business & some pieces may require this. But for a low-cost version on how to "Pack" your paintings here's what I've found works...

Sandwich your Painting in between 2 Corrugated pieces of Cardboard.

*I never use bubble wrap unless I have a high textured painting.

*I get large sheets of these for Free at Walmart by the bottle water section!

*You can also order these from Uline.com but expensive.

Save your toilet paper & paper towel rolls.

*Cut in 1/2 & long way as well. Put these on all 4 sides of your sandwiched painting & secure with packing tape. The rolls keep tape from touching your painting & keeps your sandwich tight.

Wrap it like a Present with Postal Paper.

*I buy these rolls at the Family Dollar for, you guessed it, a dollar! (If you purchase from post office this will cost MUCH more).

*TIP; Tape all edges & lines that could get snagged during travel.

Some of my Favorite Shipping Supplies

Clear packing tape & a scale.

A scale is a MUST if you are printing your shipping labels at home. You need to know the lbs & ounces.

Priority Boxes

*I ship nearly everything "Priority Mail" & you can get these for FREE at your local post office or online at USPS.com.

*NOTE: I just told you how to pack a painting with postal paper & cardboard, in which case I do not use the priority boxes but I print my labels priority. These boxes are great for smaller paintings or crafty types of items 😊

Print your Labels from Home

You can print your labels right from home after your customer makes a purchase through your PayPal.

*I use "Ship Station" which is integrated with PayPal (as of 2021).

If this is too confusing just do this...

There's nothing wrong with handwriting out your collector's address & just bringing your packages to the post office.

Once your customer / collector purchases, you will have their mailing address in your PayPal.

NOTE; It's slightly cheaper to print your labels from online.

TIP; You can order "sticky" labels for your printer on Amazon 😊

RECAP

We've Talked About...

- *Different ways you can price your art.
- *YOU make the final decision pricing your art.
- *My favorite Payment Method, PayPal.
- *I suggested, basic business account for PayPal.
- *You just need your collectors email to make an invoice for them on PayPal.
- *Tips on how to Pack & Ship your paintings.
- *Sandwich method of packing.
- *To ship you can print your labels from home or handwrite & bring to post office 😊

You're doing GREAT!

Let's Keep Going!!

START COLLECTING COLLECTORS!

This is the name of the game! But I wouldn't be a good art business coach if I didn't give you this SPOILER ALERT right up front...

You don't collect collectors "they" collect you!
& another way to look at it...
"You" don't find them. "They" find you!

So how the heck do we make this happen?...

- *By showing up!
- *Explaining who you are & what you do.
- *Building relationships with people who see & watch you.
- *Creating a specific place for your future customers / collectors to gather.

Let's Start the Process!

USE SOCIAL MEDIA AS A BUSINESS TOOL

let's get real. We're playing on our phones a lot! Not just "us" but our customers & collectors that are out there as well.

We should be using social media as a business tool because - hey, it's free! We don't even need a website to build a collector base in this day & age.

If you have one then great, extra bonus, but you don't need one to start building a following & start selling your art.

As I mentioned earlier in this guide, my favorite platform & where I've found success as an artist thus far is on Facebook.

You're welcome to use my teachings on another social platform, if you feel comfortable somewhere else.

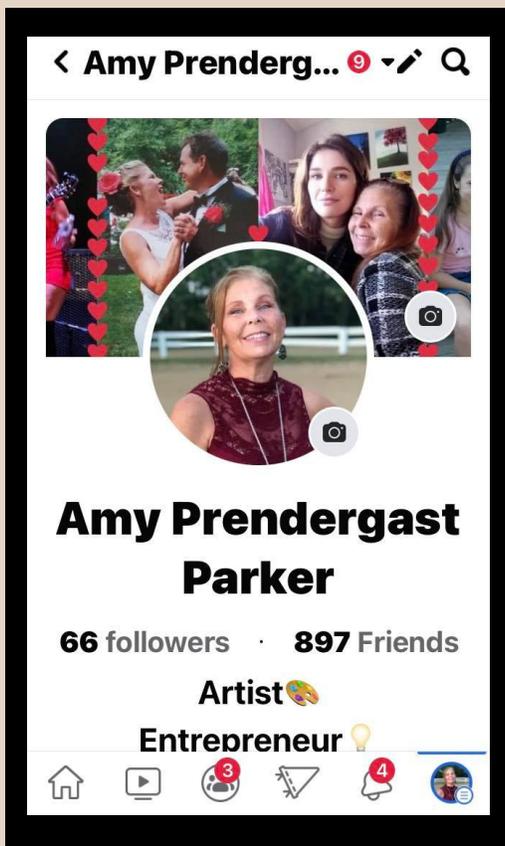

But for now, I'm going to give you some tips, tricks & strategies for Facebook.

WHAT SPACES

SHOULD YOU

BE IN?

Facebook has different "spaces" & "places" within itself. Here are the 3 you need to be in...

#1 PERSONAL PROFILE

Your personal profile is what everyone has when you sign up for Facebook.

If you don't have one of these, you can't get the other 2.

Your profile should be fun, warm & inviting. This is your space to hang out, post & interact with your family & "friends".

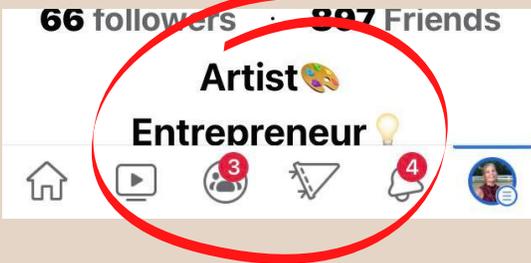

You can still show what you "do" here but it's against policy to sell on your profile.

MY TOP TIPS FOR YOUR PROFILE

Make your profile picture a picture of "you" & "your" face. Not your cat, dog, grandbaby or a scenic view. People want to know who they're interacting with & that you're a "real" person!

Make your cover photo a pic of you & your family or you could put a photo of your art with "NO" words on it. We don't want to look salesy.

Use the bio section to explain what you do & what you're about in a one liners or briefly. Use emojis to show this off. (Facebook likes that:)

Settings > Public

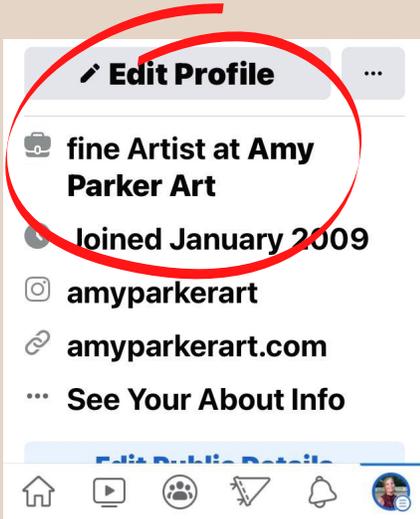

In my opinion, setting your profile to "public" greatly increases your chances to grow an audience.

I know, I know.. I said Facebook doesn't want you to sell here but there are discrete ways to build awareness like Attraction Marketing!!

Who can see your posts?

Public

(Personal Profile Continued)

When you have a business page, connect it to your profile in the "about" section. You can see my work says "fine artist at Amy Parker Art".

Amy Parker Art is my Facebook business page. When someone clicks that, it will go right to my business page!

Attraction Marketing on your Profile

In short, Attraction Marketing means... building awareness for what you do & have to offer without being salesy.

There's numerous ways to do this & I brainstorm with my Creative Warriors about it all the time. It's more of a continuous conversation. But for now, let me give you some examples you could implement right away on your personal profile...

I'm gonna show you some examples from my very own members 😊

Post pics of your work & tell people a little bit about it.

Here's what Linda posted inside of Creative Warriors!

& when I stalked her profile (lol) to see what was happening she did a great job with her description & got Awesome engagement!!

She explained a little bit about her process

Another Creative Warrior member, Karen, also posted pictures of her work on her profile. She ended up making numerous sales from it! (Strategically on the DL. Remember not to outright "sell" on your profile).

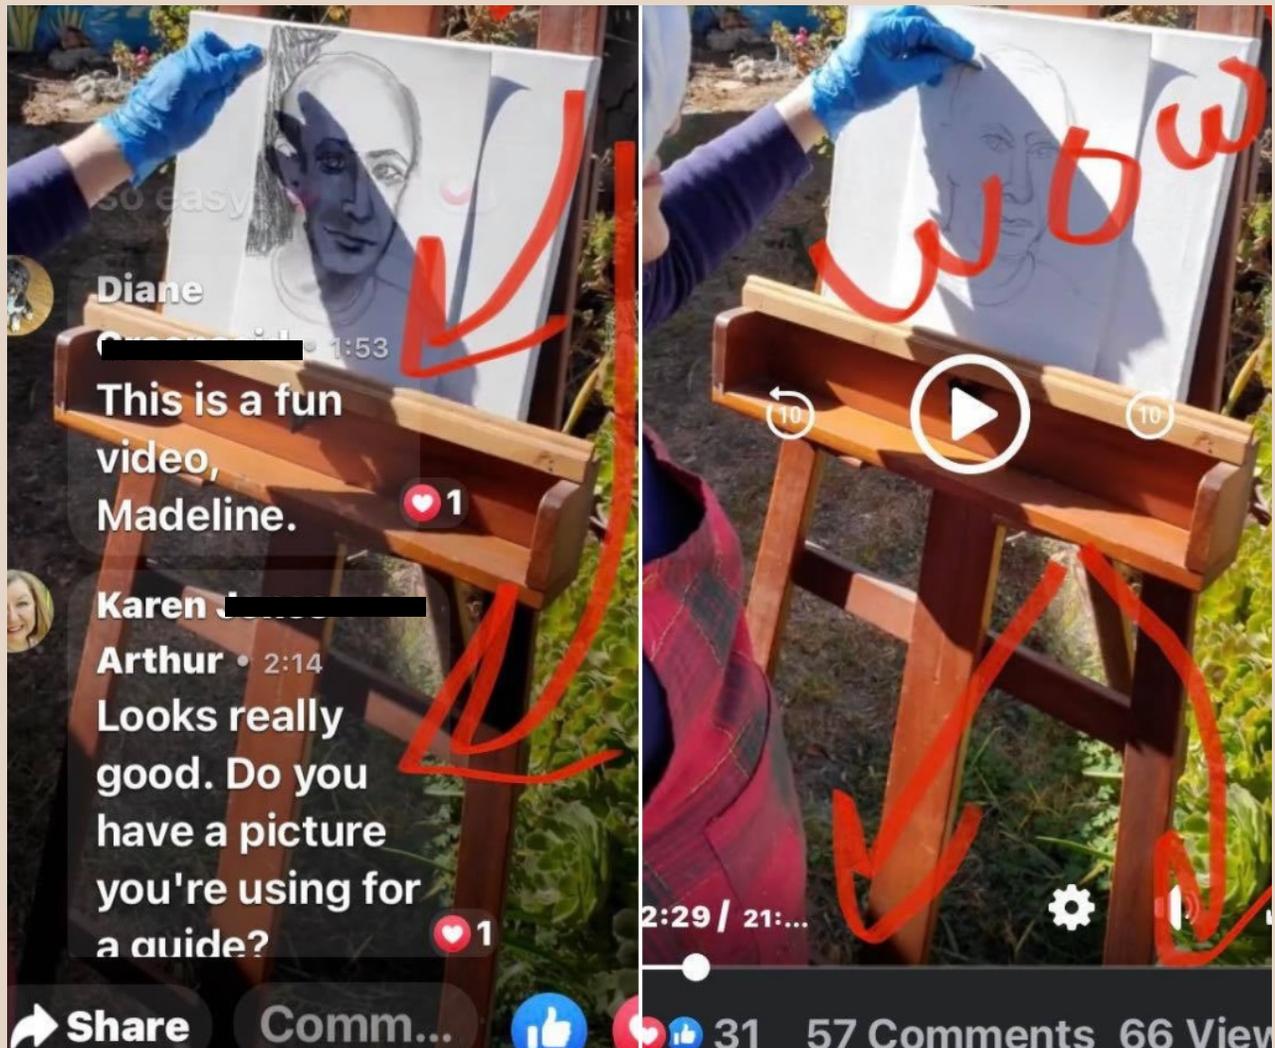

UPDATE Karen has been on a roll & gaining numerous commission orders 🙌

Going LIVE on your profile so people can see you actually "creating" is super powerful! Let's see what Madeline did...

Madeline is a Creative Warrior member & took my advice during one of our Zoom Brainstorm Sessions. I talked about how to build awareness on your personal profile without being salesy. This was Madeline's first live drawing on camera...

These comments prove she's building awareness 🙌

And... check out these #'s!!
(Madeline went Live for 21 min).

What Spaces Should You Be In (Continued)...

#2 BUSINESS PAGE

I highly recommend you setting up a business page.

Think of this like a virtual business card 😊

*Business pages are searchable on Google!

Couple things to keep in mind...

*Business pages are "Public" & there is no way to change these settings to "Private".

*If in the future you want to run ads this is where you would do that. (Not necessary though).

*When you start making posts on your business page, Facebook will try & get you to advertise. You will see things like "Boost this Post" it's getting more engagement than any of your other posts.

Sometimes people get confused here. Yes you can click & boost but know that it will cost you money & "No" you don't have to.

Keep in mind this is how Facebook makes $. By businesses running ads. So of course they want you to boost a post.

(Business Page Continued)

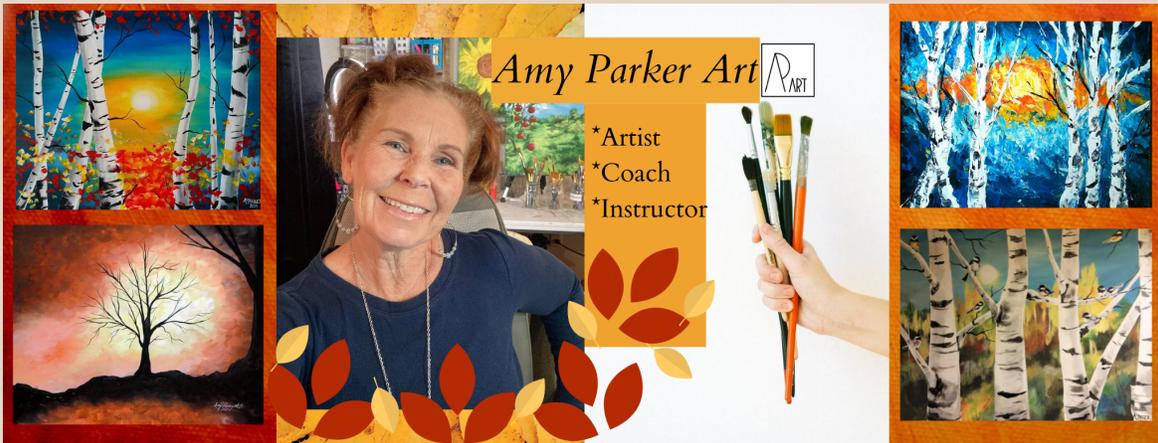

*Don't get confused & overwhelmed with your business page. Like I said, it's a good idea to have one even if you just "Park it" & come back to it when you're ready.

Just have some basic information on there in case customers search you 😊

Amy's Business Page Tips

Make your cover photo Fun & Exciting!!

You "can" put words & graphics in here, unlike your profile. Just keep to a minimum & don't over do it. Canva.com is a great site to use to make graphics! *If you're a Creative Warrior, there's numerous cover photo's that are pre-made & ready for you to use!

*Simplest version: Make your cover photo a picture of one of your art pieces & put your business name on it 😊

(Business Page Continued)

*Profile Pic

Just like your "Personal Profile" your "Business Page" also has a "Profile Pic".

In my opinion this pic should be a picture of "Your Face" because we are "artists" & our "face" is our "brand".

In some instances you could use your brand "logo" here instead.

*About Section

Use this section to quickly explain what you do. The about section is what will pop up on Google if someone searches for you there.

Anyone who comes to your Facebook Business page can see quickly what you're "About".

If they like what they read you could gain a follower! & another & another etc 😊

Don't forget to link your business page on your Personal Profile!

What Spaces Should You Be In (continued)

#3 Your own Collectors Group. This is a GOLDEN NUGGET!

A Collectors Group is basically a "group" on Facebook. Not one that you request to join but rather one that you "create" & admin yourself!

I like to call these, for us artists, Collectors Groups because this is where you should "gather" all of those people who are interested in your artwork!

*Yes, you can just run a "Page" & not a "Group". It's a personal choice.

But, the way the algorithm works on this platform is, people on your profile will see the "most" of your posts, in a "group" 2nd & lastly, your business page.

*You can actually "sell" inside of your group & or on your "Page" unlike your "profile".

What could potentially happen by having your own Collectors Group? A LOT! Let's put it into perspective...

Here's some staggering stats; At one point I had 1,500 members inside of my group. I've since cleaned it up. I kept everyone who has purchased at least 1 piece of my artwork & those who love my work & actively engage with my posts.

Even at my current member count of 774, do you think I could seriously satisfy the need of everyone who wants a piece of my "original art"? Custom paintings, portrait drawings & specific commissions etc? (My collectors are repeat buyers).

I'm a fast painter but not that fast! So in essence, I literally have an "Unlimited number" of art collectors!!

What a GREAT problem to have 🌟🌟 and I want that for you as well 😊

Enough art collectors for you to run a side hustle or even a full time gig!

TOP TIPS FOR YOUR COLLECTORS GROUP

Showcase your art in the cover photo!

You could use 1 piece of art or mix it up with many like I did.

Group by Amy Parker Art

Connect your business page to your group!

When people visit your page they will see your group.

Make your group "Private" but "Visible"

This is in your group settings.

*Announcement Post

Post a picture or video at the "TOP" of your group so your members can easily find & see it.

Tell them a bit about what you have to offer & how your group is run.

Thank them for supporting a living artist!

*Member Spotlight Example

One of our Creative Warrior members, Debbie Burton, made an AMAZING welcome video inside of her collectors group! She explained what she has to offer for artwork & thanked them for being in her group to support a living artist 💖 (Debbie has sold numerous art pieces in a short amount of time)!!

What Spaces Should You Be In RECAP

We've Talked About...

- *Your personal profile / Everyone has this who has a Facebook account.
- *Your not allowed to "sell" on your Profile.
- *What "Attraction Marketing" is & how you can use this to your advantage on your Profile!

- *Your Business page / Optional but recommended!
- *Business page is searchable on Google.
- *Business pages are always "public".
- *Ability to run ads in the future from a Business page / optional.

- *Collectors Group / a group You Admin!
- *By building awareness you can grow your group & gain unlimited art collectors!!

Relax & understand that...

You can't do "all the things - all the time" but with perseverance, determination & support, you WILL get there 😊

WHAT TO DO WITH YOUR QUESTIONS

People who ask lot's of questions discover more & grow their businesses faster 😊

The only dumb question is the one you don't ask. Don't be afraid. You can do it!

If you're a Creative Warrior then ask questions here in our members only group 😊

If you're not a Creative Warrior yet, ask your questions here in the free group I set up for you Creative Dreams

You can always email me at; amyparkerart603@gmail.com

Final Thoughts

I hope you loved this guide as much as I did writing it for you! ♥

Even though we've only touched the tip of the iceberg here, you can STILL accomplish Great things with the info!!

Working from home can get a bit lonely if you don't have a supportive community.

I always want you to be supported 😊

Follow my business page on Facebook
